Gwari Rol / Role-Play

The examiner will play the part of the hospital administrator. You are being admitted to hospital with a broken leg. You are required to supply certain details about yourself. The administrator speaks first.

She asks you for your name and address. You say you are called Jane Nance and you live in White River Street in St Austell; it is a flat on the fourth floor. The administrator asks if you have any family living with you and you say no and that you live alone and that your husband died five years ago aged seventy; your only son left Cornwall to work in Exeter.

The administrator asks your age and you reply you were seventy-five last March. She asks your nationality and you say you are Cornish of course, born and bred, from the village of Lanjeth.

The administrator asks how the accident occurred and you explain that you had been out shopping and were carrying two heavy bags and as you came back you stupidly tripped on the step but luckily a neighbour was nearby who rang for an ambulance.

The administrator asks about your general health; do you drink or smoke or take any medication. You say you have pills for high blood pressure but have never smoked. Sometimes you have a small brandy to help you sleep.

The administrator asks if you have been in hospital before and you say yes for a small operation thirty-six years ago but that your son was born at home.

The administrator says you will need to stay in hospital for a while but she is sure you will be well looked after. You thank her suitably.
